From Sparta to Spartanburg
In the early 1920s, large numbers of Greeks left their homeland and settled in the South Carolina Upcountry, specifically Spartanburg, where they made their fame and fortune in the food industry. The Greeks of this region prospered while maintaining their culture, language and religion. In fact, they virtually created a satellite of Greece in the United States, transmigrating between their two countries as one would between a mother country and a colony and establishing a haven of Greek culture in a place where the vast majority of residents were Anglo Americans or African Americans. Whereas other immigrants from southern Europe were often persecuted and discriminated against, the Greeks were held in high esteem, particularly in the Palmetto State. Dr. Catherine G. Canino will address this disparity on March 24 at 7:00PM at the Headquarters Library while telling the fascinating story of this community. Dr. Canino is a Professor of English and Director of the Honors Program at the University of South Carolina Upstate. She is author of “Shakespeare and the Nobility: The Negotiation of Lineage.” Call 864-596-3508 for more information.
